FAIL Safe Mode See "System Restore" in your Start menu. Open Start > Control Panel > System and Maintenance > System Restore. (If you are prompted for an Administrator password or for a user password, type the password.) If your PC is set to start in Safe Mode, you can use the Safe Mode to troubleshoot problems. Restart your PC and see if the problem goes away. If it does not, follow the directions in the Solution section. Click Yes in the System Recovery Options window, if you see this window. If you cannot find System Restore in the Start menu, type "system restore" into the Search Windows box. If you get a match, right-click and choose Restore System Files from that program. A message will appear, saying that your PC is running in Safe Mode, and it will ask you to choose either an advanced startup option or a custom startup option. Select the custom startup option, and then follow the on-screen instructions. Press the key that you used to turn on your computer at the last time it was running. The computer starts, and if the problem has not reappeared, choose Windows normally.

NOTE: You will lose any unsaved changes to your programs, files, and settings when you choose the Advanced Startup option.Q: WebView showing image from a url without downloading it i have seen a lot of topics with the same subject but i couldn't find my answer. I'm trying to create a app with a webview that i load a url and show the image from it but my problem is that if i go to the web i see the image directly there with no need of downloading. This is the source code that i'm trying to use: package com.example.testwebview; import android.app.Activity; import android.content.Intent; import android.
